FORECASTING THE IMPACTS OF SEVERE WEATHER: How does our work reduce the impacts of natural disasters?

Harald Richter\textsuperscript{1}, Craig Arthur\textsuperscript{2}, David Wilke\textsuperscript{1}, Beth Ebert\textsuperscript{1}, Mark Dunford\textsuperscript{2}, Martin Wehner\textsuperscript{2}, Jane Sexton\textsuperscript{2}, Shoni Maguire\textsuperscript{1}, Jeff Kepert\textsuperscript{1}, Russel Hay\textsuperscript{2}, Mark Edwards\textsuperscript{2}

(1) Bureau of Meteorology \hspace{1cm} (2) Geoscience Australia, Canberra, ACT
QUANTIFY IMPACTS

We aim to wind & rain quantify damage by augmenting the hazard intensity with exposure and vulnerability information.
IDENTIFY DATA GAPS

We highlight information gaps in currently available data required to conduct impact simulations.
We are exploring how numerical weather prediction model output best relates to asset damage on the ground.